Adding a Transaction

Add a new transaction to start tracking a listing or sale in your company's Pipeline account.

Introduction

A deal becomes real somewhere between the signature and the paperwork, and the first thing anyone in the office does about it is open a file for it. In Paperless Pipeline, that file is a transaction.

A transaction is the container for one listing or one purchase, and everything the deal produces ends up inside it. Creating one is how that starts. It takes very little to open a file, which is deliberate: a deal at the beginning is mostly unknowns, and a form that demanded all of them would stop the person entering it before the work had begun. Plenty of offices open the transaction the day the agreement is signed and let it fill in from there.

So the deal has somewhere to live from day one, and the documents that arrive over the next month land on it instead of piling up in an inbox. You can start one from any page, so opening a file doesn't cost you whatever you were already doing. And if a field is blank because nobody knows the answer yet, leave it. Coming back to a transaction is how it's supposed to go, not a correction.

How It Works

Adding a transaction takes a location, a name, and whatever listing, contract, and commission details you have — then you assign the agents on the deal and save.

Start From Any Page

The [Add Transaction] button sits in the upper-right corner of any page, so you can start a new transaction without leaving what you're doing. There's also a keyboard shortcut — Ctrl + Alt + T on Windows, or Ctrl + Option + T on a Mac.

What You'll Enter

A transaction needs a Location, a Transaction Name or Property Address, and a Status to save, plus a Label if your account requires one. MLS or Transaction Number, dates, prices, commission, and agents can all be filled in now or added later. Every field is described below, under Add a Transaction.

Put the Agents on the Deal

In the Assign Agents section you add the in-house agents on the deal and check whether each is on the Listing or Buying side — this is also what lets Pipeline detect the transaction's side for you. See Transaction Sides. If agents from another company are involved, you can add them as outside (co-op) agents for reference; they don't get access to the transaction.

Fill In the Rest Later

You don't have to complete everything now. Save with what you have, then add or change details any time from the transaction itself. See Transaction Details.

Add a Transaction

Add a new transaction to start tracking it in your company's account.

Who Can Do This: Admins, and agents with the "Create transactions" permission.

To add a transaction:

1. Click [Add Transaction] from the upper-right corner of any page. (Or use the keyboard shortcut — Ctrl + Alt + T on Windows, Ctrl + Opt + T on a Mac.)
2. Add the information you have available for the transaction (outlined below), then save.

Location

Select the Location associated with the transaction, if your account has more than one.

Transaction Name or Property Address

Enter the Transaction Name according to your office's preferred naming convention. See Transaction Names.

MLS or Transaction Number

Enter the MLS or Transaction Number.

Status

Select the Status that best describes the current stage of the transaction.

Label

Select the Label that best applies to the transaction.

Listing, Expiration, Acceptance & Close Date

Select or enter the Listing Date, Expiration Date, Acceptance Date, and Close Date in m/d/yyyy format. See Transaction Dates.

Contingency Dates

Select or enter any Contingency Dates in m/d/yyyy format.

Additional Information

Complete any Other Information or More Info your office asks for.

Admin Info

Admins only — enter any Admin Info that agents shouldn't see.

Seller Name & Lead Source

Enter the Seller Name and Seller Lead Source, if applicable. Optionally add the seller as a contact by clicking [add seller contact(s)], then entering their address, email, phone, and fax or other.

Buyer Name & Lead Source

Enter the Buyer Name and Buyer Lead Source, if applicable. Optionally add the buyer as a contact by clicking [add buyer contact(s)], then entering their address, email, phone, and fax or other.

List Price

Enter the current List Price.

Sale Price

Enter the Sale Price if the property is already under contract.

Total Commission

Enter the estimated Total Commission.

Commission Summary

Elaborate on the commission in the Commission Summary, if necessary.

Assign Agents

In the Assign Agents section, add the in-house agents on the transaction. For each agent, search for their name or find it in the list, then check the Listing or Buying box next to it — assigned agents appear on the right. To add an assistant, add them as an agent, then click [make assistant] next to their name; assistants appear in the Assigned Assistants section. See Assign Agents.

Outside (Co-op) Agents

If agents from another company are involved, check [This transaction has outside (co-op) agents], then enter the Outside Listing Agent or Outside Buying Agent's name, email, and phone. Pipeline records them for reference, and they don't get access to the transaction. See Outside (Co-op) Agents.

Pipeline saves the transaction and puts it on your Transactions list, where you can add checklists, upload docs, and bring in contacts. To change anything later, see Transaction Details.

Stop Retyping the Same File

Some offices open the same shape of file over and over — a subdivision of near-identical lots, the same builder every quarter, a management company whose paperwork never changes. Keying all of it in each time is work you can skip, and it's the feature people are most surprised to learn they already have.

Reuse an existing transaction as the starting point for a new one.

See Transaction Duplication

Bring In Deals You Already Closed

Adding a transaction is one deal at a time. When you move to Pipeline with a year of closed deals behind you, a spreadsheet brings them in by the batch instead of one form each.

Import your past transactions from a spreadsheet, up to 50 at a time.

Frequently Asked Questions

Who can add a transaction?

Admins, and agents who have the "Create transactions" permission. If you're an agent without that permission, ask an admin to add the transaction or to grant you the permission from Manage Users.

Is there a keyboard shortcut for adding a transaction?

Yes — Ctrl + Alt + T on Windows, or Ctrl + Option + T on a Mac. You can also click [Add Transaction] in the upper-right corner of any page.

What information is required to save a transaction?

A Location, a Transaction Name or Property Address, and a Status, plus a Label if your account requires one. Everything else is optional. Enter the dates, prices, and agents you have now, and fill in the rest later by editing the transaction.

Why is the Add Transaction button missing for me?

You haven't been granted the "Create transactions" permission. An admin can add it from Manage Users, or add the transaction for you. See Why Can't I Add a Transaction?

Why does a new transaction already have checklists or documents on it?

An auto-assigned checklist template added them. Admins can set checklists to apply automatically based on a transaction's status, label, or side, and those tasks and any attached documents come in when the transaction is created. An admin can adjust which templates auto-apply.
