

Home Page Announcement

Post an announcement on the Home page to keep agents and admins up-to-date and involved.

Introduction

Home Page Announcements are an easy way to keep agents and admins in the loop. Located at the top of each of your team members' Home page, announcements allow you to share important news and training updates or add some fun to the workday.

New announcements are displayed when agents or admins log in or visit the Home page. Once an announcement is read, it can be hidden so it's not in the way, and it will reappear when a new announcement is made.

Below the text area is a link that says "Learn how to format this message →". To the right of the text area, there is a yellow information box with a question mark icon. The text in the box reads: "Post an announcement to appear on the Home page for all users in your account when they login. Users may hide an announcement once they've seen it. Remove the announcement from this field once you'd like it to be removed from the Home page. Newly added/updated announcements will be shown (unhidden) for all users, even if they have hidden a previous announcement. Maximum 4 lines of message will be displayed."

- Use the formatting options to add bold and italic text, horizontal lines, links, lists, and emojis.
